Reagan will keep benefit programs

(AP) — President Reagan declared Tuesday he has no plans to propose new cuts in Social Security a year and will not balance the federal budget "at the expense of those dependent on" the program.

The president told hundreds of supporters of his economic plan that the administration that would bust the budget. "We'll continue to make budget adjustments as we did and we hold the line," he said.

Reagan, standing in a large white tent on the White House lawn, received a question from a man who had written him for his tax and benefit proposal, said "for those ubing Thomas," who questioned his resolve to fight for a balanced budget. "I have a message. They're wrong. There will be no cuts."

He acknowledged that the current efforts to trim fiscal 1982 budget had caused "some real fiscal pain" and added: "I'm not interested in the kind of budget to recovery. Then some who say our programs are not working. Of course they're not. They don't start until Oct. 1."

Chief White House spokesman David R. Gergen had said earlier that Reagan will propose new cuts in Social Security, communications, and defense. The president told several publicans that he tries to trim other open-ended deficit programs, a spokesman said Tuesday.

The statement by Gergen did not rule out the possibility Reagan will again propose — as he did earlier this year — a reduction in Social Security benefits as part of an overall refinancing plan for the financially troubled pension plan. But it halted speculation that Reagan might support a move to trim Social Security as he searched for new ways to hold the budget deficit to the $42.5 billion level the administration projected earlier.

Gergen's announcement followed a meeting between Reagan and Republican congressional leaders in which a group of senators led by Majority Leader Howard Baker urged him to take another look at cutting the so-called entitlement benefits.

"Following that meeting," Gergen said, "the president announced that he has no plans to propose additional cuts in Social Security programs beyond those he has already submitted to Congress. This announcement is intended to dampen concerns by some that there will be further cuts in Social Security . . . as means of balancing the budget."

The spokesman said Reagan "took under advisement" the senator's proposal that he try to cut other entitlement programs, which were not named specifically but which included state welfare, unemployment, veterans' pensions, Medicaid and Medicare.

Reagan himself gave reporters a rare "no comment" when they asked him at the start of the morning meeting whether he would rule out a proposal to recalculate cost-of-living increases for Social Security recipients to reduce costs.

Terrorist group attacks U.S. Army commander

HEIDELBERG, West Germany (AP)

Terrorists hidden on a wooded hill of Soviet-built grenades at a hotel near the Rhine River in Baden, Germany, carrying the U.S. flag, exploded Tuesday morning, killing two Americans early Tuesday,ashing the rear window and causing slight cuts to the head and his wife,

The attack on Gen. Frederick J. Kroesen Jr., 58, was the fourth on U.S. troops in Germany since Aug. 12, when the leftist Red Army Faction proclaimed "war against America."

West German police said the attack started at 7:05 a.m. as the general was riding to work in a green armored Mercedes along a suburban street near the center of the city. The terrorists, firing from about 200 yards, hit the general's car as it was stopped for a traffic signal.

Police said the explosion near the Kroesen's European headquarters peppered Kroesen and his wife, Rowene, with flying glass.

It was reading his morning message traffic in his notebook, Kroesen said. "There was an explosion behind me. The car stopped and I looked to see if what was going to happen next."

After seeing no one was seriously injured, Kroesen said, the driver started the car and sped off in a shower of glass.

Kroesen was driven to a U.S. Army hospital where he was treated for cuts in his head and shoulder. The instant, Maj. Phillip Bodine, and the driver escaped injury, an army spokesman said.

Lori Stephenson, a senior majoring in journalism education from Taylorsville, Utah, tells students about Club Week. Club Week is sponsored by the ASYYU Organizations Office and gives students a chance to learn about the campus clubs they can join.

Students meeting students: big purpose of Club Week

Meeting people — it's an important part of BYU life for many students, and joining campus clubs is one of the best ways to meet a friend, students say.

Clubs are only happy to oblige. The clubs will have booths open from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. this week in the West Court Patio of the Wilkinson Center to give students club information.

Chris Hall, a junior in international relations and member of the Samson Hall Society, said he joined for social interaction. "The social aspects are a major motivation for belonging to a club," he said.

All the students interviewed at Club Week said interaction with others and associating with people with similar hobbies is a major reason for joining a club.

Roger Jones, a third-year law student from

Montpelier, Idaho, who is involved in Flying Cougars, said the group provides association with other pals. "We fly together to group activities and improve our flying skills and safety by talking with other members."

John Burr, a junior from Fresno, Calif., majoring in social work, is affiliated with the Sky Divers Club. "It's a great way to get to know people who have the same standards as he does."

Many students, however, said they do it because they don't know how or where to turn for help.

Two Orem students, Chad Sumsion, a junior majoring in electrical engineering, and Shane Hill, a sophomore in accounting, said because they were not involved with clubs in the past because they were too busy learning to survive at BYU.

They said they feel more confident now and plan on joining a club.

For example, the state federal funds which strongly influences other short-term loans, increased their rates by up to 10 percent to nearly 20 percent in early July.

The banks are the overnight loans of money to individuals and businesses and an important source of funds for financial institutions.

Another cause of the lower rate, half-major banks prime rates by one-half percentage point to 30 percent. The prevailing prime rate has been at or above 20 percent since early May.

The reason is the quote banks use to calculate interest charges on short-term loans to top-rated corporations; but some banks make very short-term loans at rates below those of the prime rate. Some small business usually pay rates above the prime.

Through the first week of September, prime rates were up 0.2 percent from a year earlier, according to the business information firm Dun & Bradstreet, and more than 90 percent of companies with prime rates were below the prime rate.

The reason is the quote banks use to calculate interest charges on short-term loans to top-rated corporations; but some banks make very short-term loans at rates below those of the prime rate. Some small business usually pay rates above the prime.

President Kimball, chief economist at Chemical Bank, said he expects business failures to continue rising for the rest of the year, but that the rate of increase would remain near their current levels.

Bond prices edged higher on Tuesday with some corporate issues up 3/4 points, while others fell 1/4 point. Bond prices move inversely to interest rates.

Some economists suggested the Federal Reserve was making only slightly more aggressive in its monetary policy. The Fed is buying for lower interest rates and Republican concern about the impact of a recession on 1982 congressional races.

Attorneys request definition in suit with Utah County

By STEVE THOMSEN
Associated Press

BYU attorneys have asked a U.S. District judge for a liberal definition of charitable in a lawsuit filed against Utah County involving university-owned land that was placed on the tax roles in 1976. A BYU spokeswoman said, by their argument the disputed BYU properties are tax-exempt because the land qualifies as charitable.

Pam Parks, a BYU legal staff, said the university has paid more than $70,000 in taxes under protest after several parcels of property, including Aspen Ridge, a residential development, and a parking lot for the football stadium, lost their tax-exempt status.

The county is challenging the right of a university "to hold land for future expansion," Miss Parks said. "Until we use the property for expansion or building, they say it will not be considered as charitable."

According to Parks, the university randomly chose property that was reclassified as taxable. "There doesn't seem to be any pattern to the land that was picked. The county was probably trying to use BYU as test example," she said.

Utah County Assessor Hans Conover said the county acted in accordance with section 13 of the Internal Revenue Service code in placing the property broadly as possible, but the custom was that we tax the land until a building is constructed on it," he said.

Conover, a County Assessor, said the county has issued a response to BYU's written statement requesting that 11th District Judge George E. Ballif reconsider the current definition of charitable.

"The County has no particular interest in the case," Conover said. "The university has admitted that people who participate do not need to be stabilized to receive tax relief. That's why we're asking for using the facilities on a rental basis. This pays for basic costs and the rest is used for other expansion purposes. This is definitely not charitable," he said.

Interest rates decline as Fed eases credit

NEW YORK (AP) — Interest rates edged lower Tuesday for the fifth straight day, highlighted by a move throughout the banking system to match a modest decline in the prime lending rate.

Rallies in the bond and money markets prompted some economists to suggest rates may continue to drop slowly, with little chance for substantial relief from inflation.

The Cabinet also predicted the closing of the Soviet military liaison bureau in Cairo and its Egyptian counterpart in Moscow, and two Soviet diplomats, one a communist, terminated contracts with Soviet advisers in Egypt and reduced the overall Soviet diplomatic presence here to match Egypt's in Moscow.

But some analysts said the Soviet withdrawal, which strife had been Soviet-inspired, may be temporary.

A cabinet statement carried by the official news agency said Ambassador Vladimir Polyakov and the others had been recalled to Moscow because the Hungarian diplomat had been ejected on charges of being "biased" in favor of the Khomeini regime, leading protector during the rule of the late President Gamal Abdel Nasser.

President Kimball making progress

President Spender W. Kimball was moved from intensive care to a private room, his doctor said Tuesday.

President Kimball remains in serious condition, but continues to gradually improve, Dr. Ernest A. Johnson, who has been attending the 87-year-old president.

The church leader was expected to remain in LDS Hospital for about two weeks.

President Kimball underwent surgery Sept. 5 for removal of fluid and scar tissue from beneath the right front portion of his skull. He is still recovering from the surgery, which involved a lengthy chemotherapy procedure to rebuild his strength.

Respiratory difficulties hampered President Kimball's ability to speak and walk down stairs, but he has been able to sit up and eat.

However, Pond said doctors were watching President Kimball's condition closely and assessing his progress daily.

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — Pope Paul II, in his most comprehensive statement on social issues, stressed today that workers should benefit from the "principle of the just wage" and the "solidarity of the family."

The papal encyclical condemns the "exploitation of man by man" in the "capitalistic system" that would minimize private ownership of means of production. It suggests that workers should benefit from the "principle of the just wage" and the "solidarity of the family."

Central to the 96-page, 22,000-word document is the Pope's denunciation of "summarizing excesses" of modern economic systems.

"We must emphasize and give more attention to the primacy of man or things," the pope said. "We must first of all recall a principle that has always been dear to the care and education of children. Mothers also should benefit from the principle of the just wage."

The Pope also called for a "more positive" interpretation of the Latin motto "Laborum exercens." The Vatican gave it the descriptive title "On Human Work."

The Pope's 10th encyclical, dealing with social issues at the Pontifical University, said the encyclical reflects John Paul's vision "as just society based on an ideal

Drem residents to elect mayor, new councilmen

When Drem city conducts its municipal elections Oct. 6 voters will be choosing 17 candidates — four for the mayor position and 13 for City Council seats.

Incumbent Mayor James E. Lewis is leaving his office and has declined to run for re-election. Earl Farnsworth is the only incumbent left seeking one of the three council seats.

The other two candidates are Doyle Cawelti, Louise Fuscille, John L. Quist and Lance W. Squire.

City Council candidates include Douglas R. Hargan, Jim Damren, Earl Farnsworth, Garre Healey, Duane B. Hembert, Randy Honaker, Jack Marvin.

Other candidates for the council are Hank Lamp, Lynn H. Steele, Virginia Sedowsky, Jerry A. White, S. Blaine Willes, and Glen R. Wirth.

Two candidates for the council are Gareth Seastrom, another councilman, chose to run for re-election. Candidate Clem Zimmerman is a former councilman.

There are 11 members on the council in October, the number in the council to six of the council seats are at-large, having no districts or boundaries.

The election is non-partisan, and a primary is being conducted because the principal election date is a primary election if candidate filings exceed the number of offices to be filled.

Minor admits to 11 thefts totaling $500

A male minor arrested by BYU Security/Police Friday, only known to us was involved in 11 thefts, only one of which was reported — totaling $500 over the last three weeks.

"It was easy to rip off people because always left their stuff out," the suspect said in an interview with Security investigator Michael Colvin.

The youth was arrested after Charles Stiggins, strength and conditioning coach for athletics, saw someone looking in his briefcase in the basement of the Coliseum.

The suspect had been operating in student faculty/staff, and football locker rooms, watching people and taking items from them who neglected to lock their lockers, Colvin said.

"We weren't even aware this fellow was on campus until we went to the previous thefts," Colvin said.

Several stolen items were recovered from the suspect's apartment by BYU Security and Orem police, including a firearm, a camera and auto parts, Colvin said.

The suspect also said he had been involved in thefts on the Utah Technical College campus, Colvin said.

'professors' psychology study shows children afraid of beards'

By CATHY TIMMINS
Staff Writer

Beards frighten children according to two psychology professors who conducted a day long spring and summer.

The study, made by Parley W. Newman, director of educational psychology, and Darwin Gale, professor of educational psychology, involved 132 boys and 121 girls, from one-half to 7 years old.

Half of the children studied were from Utah, and the others were from Maine. Girls and the children were selected to reflect any prejudices kept up from the more of this area, according to Gale.

The children were asked to choose a face with pictures as the most "scary." The faces were same, except one was clean shaven, one had a beard, one had a mustache and one had a goatee.

The majority of the children picked the man with the beard as the scariest, and the clean-shaven man as "nice." There was no difference between the responses of boys or girls, or between the responses of children from the two areas, who said he had not expected differences.

One hypothesis was that maybe young children are afraid of their psychologists who had beards, Gale said.

The study was submitted to the American Academy of Child Psychology and was accepted for publication in the journal.

The project was covered in the Newsline section. The project has also been called for on-air interviews by WRNG, Atlanta, Ga.; WFAA, Dallas; and KDOT, Provo. Gale said there have been other inquiries about the results of the study since it had just been published in academic magazine.

"It was curiosity that prompted us to do it to a larger scale," Gale said. "We also intended to show if children were frightened by child psychiatrists who wore beards. We found that children need to be a little more cautious," he said.

A psychiatrist Gale spoke to, however, said the children may have considered him to be a larger, more powerful person than he was, because he was hairy. "Take a look at Star Wars," Gale said. "Who wore black? Who wore white?"

But according to Gale, even a department store Santa Claus is scary to children, although he has a beard.

This study presents "possibilities for many other kinds of research," he said. One of the possibilities is to vary colors and find if the color of the hair is a factor in how the children react.

Crestwood explosion blows door off students' apartment

Four BYU students were awakened just after 1 a.m. Saturday morning when an explosion blew open the door of their Crestwood apartment.

Lt. Warren Greenbaum, commander of detectives for the Provo Police Department, said an unknown explosive, strong enough to dislodge the door and blow the door completely open, was used.

He said there were no injuries in the case, but that a vehicle was damaged. The front door of the building, which contained seven apartments, was blown off.

Devin Shuman, a student from Ogden majoring in organization and management, was driving into the parking lot when ter the explosion occurred.

"A whole group of people were standing around the door when I got home," he said. "I wasn't sure what party going on, then I saw the door was blown."

Reed Montgomery, a student from Rockford, Illinois, said he was sleeping when the blast occurred. "I heard a loud boom, and smoke was coming around outside the door," he said.

He said there had been no suspicious activity in the case, but that a vehicle was damaged.

Conditioning reduces injuries

Stiggin's work: keep team fit

By JAY EVENSEN
Assistant Sports Editor

If fit people are happy people, the BYU football team must be not only one of the successful, but also one of the healthiest in college football.

Self-stated mental alertness, a wider range of motion and fewer injuries on the BYU football team are all the responsibility of one man — Chuck Stiggins.

Indeed some, including head coach LaVell Edwards, consider the work of this man to be a major factor in the success of the Cougars in recent years.

Stiggins, who is working on a doctorate degree in physical education, is in charge of conditioning not only for football players, but the basketball players as well.

Best job in America

"I think I have the best job in America," he says with a smile. "The thing that keeps me happy is my program." The thing that keeps me happy is my job.

Stiggins' love for his job is evident in the success of his work. In 1981 he was chosen as the Region 10 Coach of the Year, which is the year. He is also a member of the board of trustees for the National Strength and Conditioning Association, which selects the top 100 strength and conditioning coaches in the United States this year.

Stiggins said that, unlike many other conditioning coaches, he prides himself on being concerned with the total athlete. A well-balanced program, he said, makes other schools become too carried away with different parts of conditioning and neglect the total athlete.

"One thing I try to stress is training each area of the body at the same intensity," said Stiggins. "It must be a well-balanced, constructive, comprehensive program."

Drip in injuries

Since Stiggins became a native of San Diego, was hired at the Cougars' first full-time conditioning coach three years ago, the number of injuries during games has significantly dropped and the program has gained him, and the school, nationwide recognition.

Stiggins' program is built on the simple philosophy of endurance and balance, which will make the muscles stronger, more vibrant, elastic and ready to take physical action.

The program, Stiggins uses is a total workout using the same principles of endurance and balance, a year-round program, although the goal of the workouts is slightly different during the off-season.

"During the off-season we try to make big gains in strength and conditioning," he said. During the season, we try to maintain the strength we have built up."

Stiggins said the off-season program includes lifting weights three times a week, running six days a week and stretching five days a week. The running part of the program divided up into aerobic, or distance running, and anaerobic, or short sprints with intervals between.

The aerobic workout consists of constant movement without resting for at least nine minutes. The idea is to maintain a stabilized and consistent heart rate for at least 20 minutes," he said.

The anaerobic workout consists of sprints anywhere from 5 to 400 yards.

Bodily fat important

Bodily fat is watched very closely by Stiggins. The ideal percentage, however, is different for each sport.

"I like to have the skilled position quarterbacks, running backs and defensive backs — to be under 10 percent," he said. "I like for my linebackers and defensive ends to be under 12 percent and linemen under 16 percent."

The reason body fat is watched so closely is simply because it is.

"When he is not carrying excess fat, an athlete is quicker and more powerful," said Stiggins. "His speed and reactions are much quicker and anywhere from 5 to 400 yards."

BYU conditioning coach Chuck Stiggins works on stretching with an unidentified Cougar player. A lot of BYU's success has been attributed to Stiggins' strength and conditioning programs. The program has been called one of the best in the country.

his overall mobility and lateral movement becomes smooth."

During the season the workouts differ each day.

"We run two miles every Monday and Wednesday," said Stiggins. Tuesdays are devoted to sprint-interval types of activities. Wednesday is time to hit the weight room again, only this time it is done with 70 percent of Monday's weight.

Starting Wednesday, Stiggins said, it is important to begin getting the players mentally ready for the game. This means having them try to keep the players moving as intensely as possible in activities that are specific to their position, he said.

Thursday and Fridays are devoted to final preparation for the upcoming game. The only conditioning done on these days involves stretching and a warm-up drill. "Our primary goal on Thursday and Friday is to prepare the athletes mentally for the game on Saturday," said Stiggins.

This program and its results have made Stiggins one of the most respected conditioning coaches in the nation.

Top three

"The Stiggins' program is one of the three best in the country," said Dr. Brent Pratley, orthopedic surgeon and one of two medical consultants to the Cougars. "He has had the lowest incidence of injuries in the past three years than any other coach I know."

Pratley should know a good program when he sees one. Prior to coming to BYU he was in Los Angeles working closely with teams such as the Dodger, Lakers and Rams. "Our program has been fewer injuries in the past three years than ever before," he said.

Stiggins is not used to taking back seats to anyone else. He said he considers one of his main assets to be that he practices what he preaches.

Softball to start

Couds interested in competing in intramural softball will face a Sept. 17 deadline for the registration of their teams with the BYU Intramural Office. Tournaments will feature a double-elimination format with games being played Tuesday through Friday evenings and all day Saturday at the Decatur Towers athletic fields.

WORK YOUR WAY TO THE BOTTOM.

And uranium for

Sometimes it's lonely at the bottom. Deep down in the earth to extract oil from shale. Searching for uranium deep below the snow and ice in the Arctic. And sometimes it's just plain hard work. Constant, conventional changes can't get it out of there.

Because today, the bottom line in energy production means more than ever. To bring energy efficient plants all over the world, not only to find natural gas and crude oil, but to discover and use alternative sources of energy. And generation of coal, coal shale, and tar sands.

Nomen get first swim coach; self-motivation' is philosophy

By STACIELE FORD
Staff Writer

The women's swim team will have a new coach for the first time in seven years this season.

46's Stan Crump, a seasoned and well-known philosophy is one of the past seven years, women's swimmers have been under the direction of the men's coach, a Powers.

A native of Utah Valley, Crump graduated from Pleasant Grove High School. He has been actively involved as an all-around athlete. He played football, basketball, and baseball. He spent last summer swimming for the Utah Valley Dolphins, an AAU summer swim team, and is currently with another amateur sports association.

Crump has also coached the Dolphins for the past several years and he plans to continue working with them in addition to his work with the women's team.

After graduating from high school, Crump was a competitive swimmer for the Cougars until he was on a mission to the LDS Church. During the first few years after his return, he was a graduate assistant at BYU.

More recently, Crump completed three successful years of coaching at Timpanogos High School where his team was ranked nationally and exceeded both on state and national levels of competition.

Crumpture swimmers are being very good oriented. "The kids who make it to the top are on top of it mentally," he said. "If I need to compete with them, I do, but I'm here to help them reach a goal."

"Four elements are essential in swimming," Crump said. "Talent, desire, resources, and a little bit of luck."

...but she was patient would not feel comfortable around a doctor who was sickly and didn't take care of him.

"I think she would not have much respect for a condition like that," he said. "She was flabby and out of shape."

"I try to be an example," said Stiggins. "I'm not perfect."

National attention

With all the attention he has received, it has been difficult for other schools and programs would show an interest in Stiggins' athletic ability. Recently, he had an opportunity to work for several different universities throughout the country. He has also received offers to change ideas with professional teams such as the Atlanta Braves.

In spite of all the offers, Stiggins said he is quite content to remain at BYU, at least for the fourth quarter, he said.

This year Crump hopes to drum up more support for his team. He believes that success is attainable in view of the fact that the team roster looks "better than ever."

In addition to the four returning swimmers who will add depth and leadership to the team, five new recruits have joined. Crump also expects to add four or five walk-ons to the team after try-outs Monday.

The first swim-team meeting of the year is scheduled for 2:30 p.m. Saturday in the Cougars Room of the Marine Center. All returning and prospective team members, including scholarship students, are invited to attend. Practice sessions will be from 6:30-8:30 a.m. and 2-4 p.m. each day.

The team is also looking for a manager. Crump said anyone interested in applying for the position should attend the team meeting to day.

Distance runner Virgin worried about U.S. track record

SEATTLE (AP) — Craig Virgin, distance runner — both on the track and on the road — worried about the wrong road in this country.

He insists the steadily increasing popularity of road racing is what has caused the decline in track and field.

"That's a shame," too, Virgin said. "Road racing is where the time, energy and money is now going in this country."

Desert sun awaits boxers

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — After weeks of high-powered hype, Sugar Ray Leonard and Thomas Hearns will fight in desert heat Wednesday night for the universal welterweight championship.

Because of television rights, the temperature could top 100 degrees even though the sun will be down when the fight begins between 7:30 and 7:45 p.m.

Public interest also is high — the scheduled round bout will be the richest in boxing history. The purse is $10 million, with a total budget of around $40 million and net income of almost $30 million.

Leonard is getting at least $8 million and could earn another $1.5 million. He also has an option to pocket his golden-boy image that first began to glitter when he won the Olympic title in 1976.

Hearns will get about $5 million and a chance to step out from Leonard's shadow.

"I want everything he has," says the power puncher from Detroit. "I didn't win the Olympic title.

Joe Louis bust

Trainer captures boxing in art

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — The sculpture stands at the entrance of the Sports Pavilion at Caesar's Palace where Thomas Hearns and Sugar Ray Leonard will fight Wednesday night, a welterweight championship unification bout.

It is a hand-me-down bust of Joe Louis, the former world champion, molded with loving care by Don Thibodeaux, who combines career as a boxer, a world traveler and the violent world of boxing.

Thibodeaux is a trainer, and he'll be one more to add to the bust on Wednesday night. He's the one with the flowing red beard who looks like Young Tom.

"Twelve years," said Thibodeaux, fingering his foot-long beard. "I haven't shaved in 12 years."

Between his beard and his art, Thibodeaux is a rather unique character in a sport peopled by few and a few unusual types. But for all the oddities, there are many different worlds of sculpture and boxing come quite naturally.

He has worked in art for as long as he has been in boxing, which is since 1969, a few years and about 100 pounds ago, he was an amateur lightweight boxer fighting out of the Little Brown Gym.

"I always admired Louis," he said. "He was my idol. That is why I wanted to do the bust of him."

The work on the bust took about 2 years to complete. Thibodeaux met Emanuel Steward, who boxed on the same community center team, in 1959. Now he's Steward's right-hand man in the care and feeding of the Krook boxing team, which is headed by Hearns.

"I was a stand-up boxer, good at punches," said Steward, "so I spent four years working on my stance and went to work in an auto body shop."

It was there that Thibodeaux began working on sculptures. He did an 11-foot, 1,000-pound impression of Muhammad Ali from those days and sold it to a boxer friend.

Then he left to come a couple of times to a studio tree.

The coaches noted that Mike Morgan also turned in a fine performance on the defensive line with 11 sacks and a remarkable recovery for a total of 14 defensive points. It was the Salt Lake native's first appearance on the conference's all-star team.

The linebackers' award went to junior strong-side linebacker David Apoulo, Carson, Calif., who had 11 sacks, three unassisted tackles. He combined with other linebackers to shut off the Air Force wishbone attack for the quarterbacks.

Kick Kunt Gunner was the recipient of the special teams honor. He kicked a 32-yard field goal and repeatedly booted the kickoffs out of the end zone.

In 1977, when Hearns was turning 20, pro, Thibodeaux and Steward had a fight that seems to have everything — two fighters being asked to answer questions with their hearts and skills in a pressure-packed situation.

The combatants' credentials are impeccable.

Leonard holds the World Boxing Council welterweight championship and the World Boxing Association junior middleweight championship. In his last fight he has not only fought against Roberto Duran in a fight in which he displayed an ability to take a punch, stamina and a desire to win, but he has also fought against Duran quiet in the eighth round of a fight in which Leonard changed his tactics, demonstrating he is both a boxer and a fighter.

Hearns holds the World Boxing Association welterweight title. He has scored 30 knockouts in 36 fights, including 10 in the last 12. He has power in either hand, but he has not met as many quality opponents as Leonard.

While Leonard has the edge in the areas of opposition and pressure fights, Hearns holds a definite physical advantage.

BRIGHAM YOUNG UNIVERSITY Developing a Healthy Self-Image

How do you feel about yourself — do you want to be happier more successful?

Most of us have fears and values which we exhibit daily can be traced directly to our feelings of self-worth. In no other area is a positive optimism more needed. It is therefore of great importance that we learn to understand ourselves better.

Learn practical guides for the enhancement of self-concept in this five course which has become one of the most popular offerings of the BYU Department of Counseling.

The basic course contents are scripturally founded, having been drawn from the research and teachings of Dr. R. L. Dabbs, Elder D. W. Larson, and the teaching of the present and past present presidents of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints.

The course will include presentations on the following topics, "not necessarily in this order:

- 1) The fundamental characteristics possessed by the inner spirit of each individual. Many participants have responded with great enthusiasm to this concept of men not coming to the earth to get self-worth, but rather they bring self-worth with them.

- 2) The concept of how to truly love. "True love" is fundamentally a personal interest in the welfare and character traits of the individual — integrity, commitment, gentleness, love of truth, etc.) rather than externalities (body, acts of the body, performance, wealth, position, etc.).

- 3) Finding and maintaining your "real self." For many students of the program this is a difficult task. They must learn to identify and strengthen their real self, which in turn are able to develop a sense of self-worth and regard for their fellow men. By doing so, they are able to bring more confidence and happiness into their own lives.

Verujan Kojan conducts the Utah Symphony in its Lyceum performance. Kojan is in his second season of leading the Utah Symphony.

Symphony performs, opens Lyceum season

By PAUL C. SPOHR
Staff Writer

Tuesday evening magic filled the de Jong Concert Hall as the Utah Symphony Orchestra made its first appearance in Provo this season.

To the delight of the audience, conductor Verujan Kojan opened the performance with "Star Spangled Banner," a selection not included on the program.

The first scheduled number was Igor Stravinsky's "Greeting Prelude," which was performed in commemoration of Stravinsky's 100th birthday anniversary.

Also on the program were Stravinsky's "Symphonies of Wind Instruments" and "Verklaire Nacht," after Dehmel a number of writers for strings by American composers.

A brief intermission was followed by Richard Yandumin's "The Concerto."

The concert concluded with a rousing performance of "Pines of Rome," a composition of Ottorino Respighi.

BYU was one of the first stops of the 1981-82 season for the Utah Symphony.

The symphony began the season with its fifth international tour, a five-concert pops series in Utah, Arizona and Colorado.

The 1981-82 season is the second year of conductor Kojan's international recognition for his work as assistant conductor of the Los Angeles Philharmonic and principal conductor of the Seattle Symphony, principal guest conductor of the intensive guest conducting in America, Europe and Israel.

The Utah Symphony recently performed in New York City under the baton of Marin Alsop, music critic of Esquire magazine.

The symphony has itself a major orchestra superior to the orchestras of cities four and five times the size and wealth of Salt Lake City, he said.

The symphony travels more than 50,000 miles each year.

'My Turn on Earth' captivates crowd

By CARRIE MOORE
Staff Writer

Back for a short return engagement at the Utah LDS Auditorium, "My Turn on Earth" included a three-day stay in Provo with a captivating performance Monday night.

The well-known melodrama, written by Carol Lynn Pearson and Lex de Puy, depicts the emotional challenges of the real world as seen through a child's eyes.

Carrie Moore, as the main character, Barbara, was a strong focal point and carried the story well with her spunk and enthralling ability to convey the feeling to the audience. Her previous experience with other older melodramas (such as "Saturday's Warrior" and "Debbie") comes through as she easily relates from the life experiences of Barbara to tears typical of this composer's productions.

Most of the laughs are provided by Douglas Holt in the role of Charles. His child-like appearance makes him a natural for this role, as many of the funniest lines are his.

The humor is stretched just a bit to the point where it borders on the serious, but into here goes as Satan. The audience had a hard time adjusting to the change in tone of this part of his performance. His acting during the rest of the play, however, was outstanding, and he carries the audience with his ability to portray childish wit.

Scenery and costume changes are kept to a minimum, but this technique is very effective, and allows the audience more freedom to relate to the story on an individual level.

Both singing and dancing blended well, and the choreography, done by Debbie, was excellent. Paul Pan, added further unity to the production.

The high point of the performance came with the song "Eternity Is You," as Barbara prepares to return to heaven.

John, played by Michael Holt, teams with Barbara in a beautifully executed final number that left much of the audience in tears.

Y graduate's art exhibited

By NORMA RUSSELL
Staff Writer

The artwork of Brian Rindlisbacher will be displayed throughout September in the B.F. Galleria in the Harris Fine Arts Center.

Rindlisbacher graduated from BYU in 1973 with a master's degree in fine arts and is now an associate professor of art at West Texas State University.

According to J. Cliff Allen, gallery director, Rindlisbacher has a beautiful paint quality in his work.

"They have become lost while sightseeing, the dead said, and not being able to speak the language, they were all dead and alone," Allen said.

But two American missionaries, gave the couple help and explained they were both former BYU students and would remain with them until they could speak English again.

The dean was so impressed with the missionaries and BYU that when he reviewed Rindlisbacher's application the dean said, "He is a good man, he is a good teacher, he is a good person, he is the man I'd like to see in the position."

Rindlisbacher's art has largely been commission work and he has worked in many private and public collections.

He moved to Texas after he was asked by officials of Texas State University, located in Canyon, to visit the campus for an interview.

Faculty members at the university told Rindlisbacher that the dean of the College of Fine Arts had met, and the dean of the College of Fine Arts told of an experience he and his wife had with Mormon missionaries while traveling in Mexico.

They had become lost while sightseeing, the dead said, and not being able to speak the language, they were all dead and alone," Allen said.

Ballet West

Season to begin

Ballet West steps into its most ambitious and exciting season since its debut 10 years ago at the Capitol Theater.

The 1981-82 season of classics and new creations includes three world premieres, three repertory favorites and the company's first full-length production of Swan Lake.

The season opens with Harold Underwood's "Studies," funded by a gift from Phyllis Perleman.

The breathtaking ballet is an expression through the development of asocial ballerina from the five basic positions of the body to the depths of the dancer's art and technique.

"Swan Lake," which opens with the apologetic Thursday, Feb. 10, will be the season's most popular classic, produced by Ballet West, according to artistic director Bruce Larde.

"Swan Lake" requires dancers of great emotional intensity, fluidness and balance, strength, physical grace and endurance.

"Ballet West is eminently qualified to take on an ambitious role like 'Swan Lake,'" Larde said.

The company will be augmented by its dancers from Ballet West II, a second performing company from the University of Utah, for the production.

All 55 dancers will undergo weeks of rehearsal before "Swan Lake" premieres.

Prominent TV filmmaker documents modeling life

NEW YORK (AP) — Frederick Wiseman spent a full year editing a V documentary called "Model." He editing was a solitary and costly endeavor, but one that began with 95 hours of raw film.

"What happens in editing," he said, "is that you have to be, at a certain point, the editor of the film. The people become characters, a fictional sense, and the material always churning around in your head."

"As involved as you have to be, to be able to try to make it stand up straight," he said, "to make the judgments of you must make when you're collecting about a material, you're not going to be able to make the film."

"Model" is the latest of Wiseman's 10 documentaries, all of them made in black and white without music or narration. Many others have been made in a series of films he has produced and directed under contract with New York's primary public TV station, NEA-TV.

His first, "Titicut Follies," filmed the Massachusetts State Hospital for the Criminally Insane, was broadcast in 1967. The entry previous to "Model" was "Maneouver," which follows an international competition in chess.

"Model," with the models, clients and staff of New York's Zoli Management Inc., the principal characters, is Wiseman's attempt to capture the glamour as well as the grittiness of the modeling business.

"Like everyone else," Wiseman says, "I had certain preconceptions about models and modeling. As a result of the six weeks I spent with the agents and people, I think I learned something about what it's like to be a model."

"Model," may be similar to previous films such as "Hospital" in 1970, "Juvenile Court" in 1973, "Mest" in 1975 and "The War at Home" in 1977, all extremely complex personal and professional relationships involving both individuals and institutions.

"I look at sequences several times, trying different ways of presenting the material, the filmmakers say. "It must be done in a way that's acceptable to the audience, and also be fair to the actual experience."

"Model," that means someone in authority has given you access to all kinds of things, and you have terrific responsibility, and something that cannot be abused."

Jonelle comes home; plans to study music

By CARRI PHIPPEN
Staff Writer

Miss Utah, Jonelle Smith, will return to Utah Sunday after competing in the Miss America competition in Atlantic City, one of the 10 finalists, said her sister Stephanie, a junior at Provo High School.

The third premiere of three new ballets by William F. Christensen, Helen Douglass and Bruce Marks will be at the theater.

Christensen's "Tyrrhanna" is a classical story ballet composed from Rossini's opera, "La不要再

"To most people 'Swan Lake' is herald," said Marks. "In all the classical literature there is no work of greater beauty than 'Swan Lake.'

Our premiere will represent the music from Rossini's opera, is a classical story ballet combining wit and romance."

The 10 finalists were chosen on the basis of their performances in the preliminary round, swimsuit competition and press interviews, all of which were conducted prior to the final pageant night.

As a result of the competition, Jonelle will receive $3,000 in scholarships, Stephanie said. She and her mother, Shirley, who completed her education at BYU, she will use the scholarship, along with the $6,000 scholarship she received upon winning the Miss Utah crown, at the Juilliard School of Music in New York.

Stephanie said her sister hopes someday to be capable of singing for the Metropolitan Opera in New York.

Stephanie said the family was very proud of Miss Utah's performance, and although disappointed that she did not win, she had done very well.

To make the final 10 is a great honor for Jonelle, and a good experience for the family.

"We feel Jonelle will equal to the winner in beauty and talent, and represent Utah exceptionally well."

Miss Smith will return to Utah Saturday, her one-year reign as the Miss Utah State, Stephanie said.

During her reign, she will not be allowed to marry or attend a college, but she will be allowed to spend this year representing Utah and perfecting her musical talent.

Mauri tour group to sing, dance at Y

A Mauri touring group from New Zealand will perform in the Smith Fieldhouse Oct. 6 at 7:30 p.m. as part of its 1981 United States tour.

The Mauri Concert Party touring group with members from throughout New Zealand, will be performing in Los Angeles, Las Vegas, Salt Lake City and Seattle, added Provost to the group's schedule.

The majority of the members in the touring group have performed together since 1957 and were construction work missionaries of LDS Church.

The group members helped construct the LDS Tabernacle in New Zealand, the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints and LDS chapels throughout New Zealand, Australia and Samoa.

As part of its international concert, the group will perform various dances, polka dances and action songs.

The performers will be dressed in colorfully authentic costumes.

Tram at Snowbird closes

The Aerial Tram at Snowbird resort will be closed the remainder of the summer season.

According to tram supervisor Reid Gandy, the main tram cables is broken, replaced as part of routine maintenance program.

The tram will reopen in November for the 1981-82 ski season.

The public is still welcome to hike in the area normally served by the tram.
